Multistate Amicus Briefs and Supreme Court Review

In “Multistate Amicus Briefs and Supreme Court Review” (American Bar Association, October 17, 2022), Pollock Cohen senior counsel Ben Battles, drawing on his experience as the former Solicitor General of Vermont, explains how state attorneys general from across the political spectrum are increasingly coordinating on multistate amicus briefs to influence the U.S. Supreme Court’s decision to hear a case.

To see the full article, click on the link below.

Multistate Amicus Briefs and Supreme Court Review | American Bar Association