Apple Accused Of 'Flagrant' Tracking Of Opted-Out NY Users

In “Apple Accused Of 'Flagrant' Tracking Of Opted-Out NY Users” (Law360, January 13, 2023), Law360 covers a New York federal court putative class action complaint against Apple. The complaint alleges that Apple is unlawfully collecting data from users of iPhones and iPads, even after consumers explicitly choose settings that prevent data sharing.

Pollock Cohen managing partner Adam Pollock is representing plaintiffs in this case.

Click the link below to read more. Please note, a subscription may be required.

Apple Accused Of 'Flagrant' Tracking Of Opted-Out NY Users | Law360