

Salon: "That's When Judges Hand Down Jail Time": Ex-NY Prosecutors Say Trump Is Daring Judge With Outburst

In "'That's When Judges Hand Down Jail Time': Ex-NY Prosecutors Say Trump Is Daring Judge With Outburst" (Salon, June 1, 2024), Salon discusses Trump's outburst after his conviction on 34 felony counts of falsifying business records and its potential impact on his sentencing.

In the article, Pollock Cohen managing partner, Adam Pollock, comments, "Frankly, in general, we like to see that convicted criminals get sentenced, serve that sentence and then move on in society. That is for the greater good and that people don't live with a lifetime stigma, when it comes to their job applications, of a conviction after they've served their sentence. I would expect that he will be sentenced, he will serve whatever sentence there is and he would move on in his future career endeavors, which obviously he's applying for a job."
