Inc.: The Strand Will Pay Nearly $1.5 Million Over a Covid Loan It Wasn't Eligible to Receive

In "Inc.: The Strand Will Pay Nearly $1.5 Million Over a Covid Loan It Wasn't Eligible to Receive" (Inc. Magazine, November 4, 2026), Inc. discusses a whistleblower lawsuit filed against the Strand Bookstore, which alleges that the Strand accepted a second draw PPP loan for which it was ineligible.

Pollock Cohen LLP partner Adam Pollock commented on the case: "Taking money improperly from the government always matters and should always be repaid. When we talk about taking money from the government, we're talking about taking money from taxpayers, from schools, from healthcare."
