

Grit Shouldn't Be A Secret In The College Admissions Formula

In “Grit Shouldn't Be A Secret In The College Admissions Formula” (The Hill, May 21, 2019), Steve Cohen discusses the College Board's adversity score and raises the question of whether colleges should really seek out insight about a student's grit, sending the message that everyone has an equal chance to demonstrate determination and hard work, no matter where they start from.

To see the full article, click on the link below (subscription may be required).

Grit Shouldn't Be A Secret In The College Admissions Formula } The Hill