

Healthcare Equity & Public Health

Health care is a human right. We believe that everyone should have access to affordable, high-quality health care. Public health is a public good. We use the law to ensure health care equity and to promote public health for our clients and for our communities.

We advocate for health care equity and public health. This means that your gender, race, sexual orientation, age, disability or socioeconomic status shouldn't dictate whether or not you can obtain health care. It means that everyone should have access to a safe environment, safe products, and safe communities.

We are former attorneys from offices of the states' Attorneys General, with vast experience in health care law and government investigations. We have litigated in all areas of the health ecosystem: we've sued insurance companies and drug companies; challenged federal and state government action (and inaction); and advocated for individuals who are simply seeking to get treated for their illnesses or be safe from harmful products.

Talk to us

Public health—whether it is access to services, insurance coverage, the remediation of environmental dangers, safe products, or safer communities—is essential to our society and the common good. If you have a problem, call us. We may not be able to fix it, but we will listen.
